"THE NEW CITY IN A TIME OF CHANGE: CHALLENGES OF ARCHITECTURAL-PLANNING AND CONSTRUCTION-PRODUCTION PROCESSES"

(March 31, 2026)

Venue and Time:
The symposium will begin at 10:00 AM at: 35 Yevhena Konovaltsia Street, Ivano-Frankivsk, King Danylo University.

The Event Will Be Useful For:

- representatives of state authorities and local self-government bodies involved in spatial planning, development of territorial communities, and post-war urban recovery;
- researchers, academic and teaching staff in the fields of architecture, urban planning, construction, ecology, and related disciplines;
- doctoral candidates, PhD students, and students researching spatial development, sustainable urban planning, and innovative construction technologies;
- professionals and experts in sustainable development, urban management, regulation of urban and construction processes, and the formation of safe and inclusive living environments;
- representatives of NGOs, professional communities, and activists engaged in shaping a comfortable, safe, and sustainable urban environment;
- everyone interested in contemporary challenges of urban development, architectural and planning solutions, and construction and production processes.

Purpose and Essence of the Event
The purpose of the event is to create a professional platform for discussing current challenges and prospects for urban development in the context of architectural planning, urban planning, and construction and production processes under martial law and during post-war recovery.
The event will promote interdisciplinary dialogue among representatives of state authorities and local self-government, scholars, practitioners, experts, and the public to develop coordinated approaches to creating a safe, resilient, and functionally balanced urban environment.

Main Areas of Activity
Professional Presentations and Discussions
Speeches by leading experts in urban planning, spatial planning, architecture, construction, and related disciplines, analyzing current challenges of urban development during martial law and post-war recovery.
Panel Discussions
Discussion of problems and opportunities for urban transformation with participation of representatives of state authorities, local governments, researchers, practitioners, and the public.
Practical Cases
Review of real examples of architectural and planning solutions, construction and production processes, recovery and revitalization projects, with a focus on identifying optimal and sustainable solutions.
Networking
Opportunities to establish professional contacts, exchange experience, and initiate interdisciplinary cooperation among research institutions, authorities, and design organizations.
Recommendations and Final Resolution
Preparation of a final document containing developed proposals and recommendations that may be used in spatial planning practice, urban policy, and implementation of urban development and recovery projects.

Working Languages — Ukrainian, English.

Format of Participation — In-person with the possibility of online participation (a link will be sent to registered participants prior to the event).
